Friday, November 19. 1714.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Nov. 24.

Warsaw, November 10.

TH E Cracovian Deputies, who had lately an Audience of the King, are still here, waiting their Dispatches. In the mean time they have in a Conference with the Crown Chancellour declared, that their Waywoodship had no Intention to take up Arms against the King, but on the contrary that their mounting on Horsecback was to procure that which will maintain his Majesty upon the Throne; and that they will sacrifice their Lives and Fortunes in his Majesty's Service: But they hope that they shall be relieved from the heavy Contributions and the Saxon Troops, which they can no longer bear, and by which they are already almost ruined. To which it was answered, that the King will consider their Complaints, provided they will cease to oppose his Royal Authority. Nevertheless the Saxon Commissaries have written to the several Districts, that they must pay five Timpfen for every Chimney upon pain of military Execution, although the Inhabitants to pay that Tax are forced to sell not only their Household-Stuff but even their Cloaths. The Saxons have seized 150 Men at Belzye who belong to the Palatinate of Sandomir, upon pretence that they were going to joyn the Nobility of Cracow. The Palatine of Masovia in his Return from Constantinople is arrived at Dzwynogrod three Leagues from Lemberg, where he met the Crown-General, and is soon expected in this City.

From the Hague Courant, dated Nov. 21.

Copenhagen, Nov. 12. Our Squadron of Men of War lie still in this Road ready for sail, but no Man can comprehend what Service they can be employed in this late Season of the Year, especially since 'tis known that the Swedish Fleet under Admiral Watrang is already gone into Haven, part at Carelskroon and the rest at Stockholm, to be laid up. But there is some Appearance that a Design is forming for an Invasion of Schonen by the Russians, and that a good Number of those Troops will joyn ours, to act against the Swedes, in case their King shall upon his return into Pomerania undertake any Enterprize against us.

Hamburg, Nov. 16. The Duke of Mecklenburg, who went hence some time since with large Bills of Exchange to meet the King of Sweden, having learnt upon the Road that that Prince will not see any body upon his Journey, turned back, and came on the 9th to Dobran, after having spoken with Count Welling at Gustrau. They write from Stralsund, that the Counts Tessin and Meyerfeldt, with Baron Lilienstedt, are arrived there from Stockholm by express Order of the King of Sweden. As these three Lords are very much against Count Welling, we shall see at the King of Sweden's Arrival which of them will have the Approbation of that Prince. Count Welling has had the Skill to recover out of the Hands of the Duke-Administrator his own Letters and Advices relating to Stettin, inasmuch that there can no written Evidence be brought to prove that he had any Share in that Negotiation, and 'tis believed he will throw all the Blame upon the Court of Gottorp of the bad Consequences of that Affair. We hear that General Lieven is come from Vienna to the Court of Hesse-Cassel, to bring as 'tis said the King of Sweden's Approbation of the Marriage between the hereditary Prince of Hesse-Cassel and the Princess Eleonora; and 'tis even said, that she will have for Dowry the Duchy of Deux-Ponts: But this is hardly probable upon many Accounts.

Hamburg, Nov. 20. The Passengers who come from Stralsund, say that Town is filled with Strangers of all Qualities, who expect to see the King of Sweden suddenly. And we hear from Stockholm, that the Senate have named Deputies to go thither and congratulate the King upon his Arrival. Count Welling has shewed himself extremely contented with the military Dispositions that General Ducker has made in that Province in so short a time, declaring that the Infantry is in as good Condition as can be desired, but the Cavalry are very ill mounted, and they are much put to it to find good Horses enough to put them into a Condition for Action so soon as may be desired. That Count had like to have been taken as he passed the Elbe near Stekenitz by a Party of Danish Dragoons, and he had Difficulty enough to get safe to Gustrau, where he took a Swedish Guard, who conducted him as far as Stralsund. Letters from Copenhagen bring, that the Swedish General Steinbock has been conducted from his House to the Castle under a Guard of 10 Men, where the Governour Major-General Bonard shewed him four Chambers which are assigned for his use. 'Tis said the Court will in a few Days publish in Print some Instructive Accounts relating to the Conduct of that General since he has been Prisoner at Copenhagen. We hear from Berlin, that his Prussian Majesty has raised some new Battallions to march into Stettin; that the Sieur Manteuffel, Envoy from the King of Poland, is arrived there, and that M. Slippenbach, who is lately returned from Petersburg, will soon be sent Ambassador from his Majesty to the Court of France.

Dublin, Nov. 12. Yesterday General Steward set sail in a Yacht for Chester, in order to go with the Lady Grandison to the Bath; and my Lord Tirawley is expected here to succeed him in his Post of General of our Forces.

Plymouth, Nov. 14. The 12th arrived the Mary of London with Wine and Fruit from Malaga for Amsterdam. This Day came in the Mary of St. Martins with Deals and Iron from Gottemburg, and the Three Crowns of Ramsgate with Wine from Cadix for London.

Portsmouth, Nov. 16. His Majesty's Ship the Rose, Capt. Kelly, riding at Spithead; and the Fowey, Capt. Shadruck, returned from St. Hellens Yesterday in the Afternoon to Spithead.

Shields, Nov. 12. On the 9th arrived the George and Elizabeth from Lisbon, with Wine Salt and Lemons; and the Sarah and Francis, the Right, and the Jonathan, all from Norway; as also the Mouse, Capt. James Dawson, with Tar from the East-Sea. Last Night came in from Norway the Hope and Care, Capt. Wrongham, and the Reed, Capt. Erington: And this Morning and last Night sailed about 13 or 14 laden Colliers.

Deal, Nov. 17. The Bellamaunt sailed just now for Hamborough.
